Dear Shoppers:

I developed "Super 4 Kids" to help guide parents and caregivers towards the best foods Gelson's has to offer for children over the age of two. It is based on the Mediterranean Diet, which is the healthiest diet in the world for both children and adults. It has been shown to prevent many chronic diseases, including cardiovascular diseases, type 2 diabetes, certain cancers, Alzheimer's disease, Parkinson's disease, asthma and even obesity. For more detailed information on feeding children, my October 2013 Nutrition Notes* newsletter discusses how and what to feed children to support optimal eating and development.

Additionally, we endorse the Mediterranean Diet to help our shoppers reduce their risk of cardiovascular disease with a program called "Super Heart Smart." The program is intended to provide you with information about how to eat to promote heart health. To learn more about how to choose heart-healthy foods, see my July 2012 Nutrition Notes* "Super Heart Smart" newsletter. This extensive "Super 4 Kids / Super Heart Smart Shopping List" contains over 700 items in our stores that I recommend for heart health, children's health and overall wellbeing based on the principles of the Mediterranean Diet.

The following are the general criteria that I used for selecting foods for this program:

- Foods are either a daily or weekly part of the Mediterranean Diet. Daily foods can be eaten in small amounts each day, whereas weekly foods are to be included up to three times a week. Weekly foods are differentiated from daily foods when appropriate. On this list, weekly foods are listed with an asterisk (*) next to them.
- Minimally processed foods with short lists of ingredients (most of which you would have in your own kitchen) are favored.
- Products cannot contain any high fructose corn syrup, artificial colors, flavors or preservatives.
- Lower sodium foods are given preference. The sodium limit for each product depends on the type of food, but I allow up to about 180 milligrams of sodium per serving for each item with the limit of 400 milligrams of sodium per meal and 150 milligrams of total sodium per snack.
- Organic is emphasized, especially because it could be less processed and may contain higher quality ingredients, less sodium and fewer pesticide residues than conventional products.
- Foods with a whole grain listed as the first ingredient are given preference over refined grains.
- Heart-healthy fats are emphasized. Foods high in saturated fats are limited; foods that contain trans fats, soybean oil and tropical oils (coconut and palm) are excluded. Monounsaturated fats and omega-3 fats are emphasized. Processed foods made with extra virgin olive and expeller pressed canola oils are preferable.
- Saturated fat in cheese is limited to 3 grams per ounce for "daily" cheeses. Traditional Mediterranean cheeses with higher saturated fat content are eaten in small quantities—up to 1 tablespoon—and are designated as "accent cheeses." Shredded, grated and crumbled "accent cheeses" are given preference over blocks so they can easily be measured.

- Toddlers, preschoolers and most children should consume whole milk dairy products (check with your pediatrician). Whole milk dairy, yogurt and cheese that are recommended for ages 1-18 are listed with a cross (†) next to them and designated “Super 4 Toddlers.”
- Added sugars are limited. Foods with little to no added sugars are prioritized, when relevant.
- Sweets are eaten in very small amounts a few times a week on the Mediterranean Diet. The best choices are included here, but portions must be kept very small when they are consumed. Saturated fats, added sugars and sodium were limited when selecting these items.

Look for my “Super 4 Kids” and “Super Heart Smart” shelf tags on selected items throughout the store as you shop. Of course, the foods that I tag are individual foods, so how you combine them with other foods is still important since there is no such thing as a “perfect food.” I hope you will find this shopping list helpful in your quest to feed your family and yourself as healthfully as possible.

Best of health,
 Jessica Siegel, MPH, RD
